

Protecting hospitals and care homes

COMPCO
Fire Systems

Securing hospitals, medical facilities and care homes against fire

Within hospitals, medical facilities and care homes, removing patients and residents rapidly from outbreaks of fire can prove difficult. That's why safeguarding operations, examinations, and wards requires fast and effective fire protection systems.

Using the latest fire control technology, COMPCO Fire Systems provides quality engineered fire-protection solutions for hospitals, medical facilities and care homes throughout the UK.

With clients ranging from private care homes and multisite facilities, to major NHS Hospital Trusts such as Barts and the Royal London Hospital, Queen Elizabeth and University College Hospitals, you can feel confident we have the experience required to cater for your needs.

Providing the right solution

To achieve maximum fire protection in your premises, our engineers employ such solutions as life safety systems, zone monitoring and institutional sprinkler heads. Furthermore, by building in modular units, we can install rapidly and reduce your on site costs.

This offering extends to acting as the principal contractor on your project. From design, obtaining planning permission and co-ordinating other on site trades to handover, we provide a full turnkey service. Working alongside some of the UK's largest building contractors and Private Finance Initiative (PFI) providers, COMPCO operates to the highest standards of service, workmanship and safety. So, you can feel sure our services will satisfy your every expectation.
